DIGITAL-PRODUCT TOOL

Content-to-Product Idea Sparker

Turn the content you already make into a digital product people will pay for.

Editable. Keep it. Reuse it for every new idea.

wyzlabsolutions.com

Editable

Reusable

Keep it forever

No blank page

Your content is market research you already ran.

Every save, share, and "how did you do that?" is a signal. This kit helps you read those signals and turn one of them into a digital product you can sell, without starting from a blank page.

Who this is for

- Digital product creators
- Coaches and freelancers
- Content creators sitting on posts, videos, or client work

TANDAAN Meron ka nang idea. Nasa content mo na.

The biggest digital products started as free content.

The creators on the next pages did not guess what to build. They noticed the same thing getting asked for, then packaged it. You can run the same play at your scale.

THE SAME PLAY, PROVEN BY:

Thomas Frank

Justin Welsh

Easlo

Ali Abdaal

Bo Sanchez

Chinkee Tan

Free content is your test lab. What people keep asking for is the product waiting to be packaged.

Same move, different formats.

Four global creators who turned content into product.

1 Thomas Frank

Notion tutorials to Notion templates

Reported about $1M in 12 months, $2.5M+ lifetime

Lesson: Sell the system you already teach.

2 Justin Welsh

LinkedIn content to templates and a course

Reported roughly $10M solo business

Lesson: Productize your repeatable process.

3 Easlo

Social posts and free templates to a paid flagship

Reported $500K+ in under two years

Lesson: Give a free version, sell the full one.

4 Ali Abdaal

YouTube content to an academy and products

Reported $10M+ cumulative

Lesson: Package what your content proved people want.

Reported figures from public case studies, shown as proof of the pattern, not a promise.

Closer to home, Filipinos are doing it too.

You do not need a US audience. Filipino creators have been turning content into digital products for years.

Bo Sanchez

Turned his writing and talks into ebooks and the Truly Rich Club, a paid digital membership.

Lesson: Content can become a recurring product.

Chinkee Tan

Turned his money coaching into bestselling books and digital products.

Lesson: One clear message, many products.

The rising Pinoy template scene

Filipino Notion planners, Canva templates, and Gumroad, Etsy, Shopee, and Lazada sellers.

Lesson: The local market is already here.

TANDAAN Kung kaya nila, kaya mo rin. Nasa content mo na ang simula.

Named examples are documented public figures, shown as proof of the pattern.

From content to a product you can sell.

Your path, four steps.

Work them in order. You finish with one product idea and a way to test it this week.

STEP 1

What does your audience keep reaching for?

List your content that gets the strongest response. Look for saves, shares, comments, DMs, and "can you send me that?"

My most saved or shared posts or videos

Questions people ask me again and again

Things clients or friends asked me to just send them

TANDAAN If you had to send one file to help someone today, ano yun? That is a product clue.

STEP 2

Group the signals into one or two themes.

Look at your list. Circle the repeats. Most creators find one theme that keeps showing up.

Theme 1 (the problem it solves)

Theme 2 (optional)

The one I get asked about most

One strong theme beats five weak ones. Pick the one with the most pull.

Match your theme to a product type.

The digital product menu. Eight formats to choose from.

Template

Notion, Canva, spreadsheet, doc.
Repeatable setups and systems.

Toolkit or kit

A bundle of assets. A full everything-you-need pack.

Guide or ebook

A method or step-by-step you explain a lot.

Swipe file or scripts

Words people copy: captions, emails, pitches.

Preset or asset pack

Presets, LUTs, fonts, graphics. A look you are known for.

Checklist or workbook

A process people want to follow.

Dashboard or tracker

Numbers or habits people want to manage.

Mini-course or workshop

A skill better shown than written.

STEP 3

Your theme, as a product.

Pull from the menu on the previous page. Turn your strongest theme into one clear product.

My theme

Best product type for it

What the buyer can do after using it (the result)

Choose the format you could ship this week, not the most impressive one. Small and done beats big and someday.

YOUR STARTER PRODUCT

Shrink it to a first, shippable version.

Name the smallest version of your product that still helps someone. That is your starter product.

Starter product name (working title)

What is inside, version 1

Peso price I am considering

TANDAAN Ang unang bersyon, hindi perpekto. Kailangan lang totoo at nakakatulong.

STEP 4

Test the demand, the free-at-the-top way.

Easlo and Thomas Frank gave a free version first, then sold the full one. Do a smaller version of the same test.

Post a free mini version and watch saves and requests.

Offer a waitlist or pre-order link and count sign-ups.

Ask five people who fit your buyer: would you pay for this, and why.

My validation test this week is

You have a product idea. Here is what comes next.

Package and price, in short.

Once your test shows real interest, package the full version and set a price that matches the result, not the hours.

Built-in checkout. The WyzCore checkout runs on Stripe, Xendit, PayPal, and WyzCore Coins, and converts each payment to your currency.

Keep this file. Run the sparker again for every new idea.

OPTIONAL SPEED BOOST

Use AI to help

COPY THIS PROMPT

"Act as my digital product coach. Here is content that gets the strongest response from my audience: [paste 3 to 5 examples]. Suggest three digital products I could make from it, the best format for each, who each is for, and a peso price range. Then pick the one I could ship this week and list what goes inside version one."

Paste this into any AI you already use, or the free WyzAI Assistant. Find it at wyzcore.com. The thinking stays yours.

YOUR FIRST MOVE

Your single next step.

Run your validation test this week. When people say yes, build the full version. The Bingeable Course Blueprint Kit and Course in a Day help you package it fast, and the Pricing and Packaging path helps you price it.

See what is available at www.wyzcore.com

This tool is complete on its own. One test this week is the move.
